In 2006, voters in middle and eastern Superior Township voted to become a part of the Ypsilanti District Library. The Ann Arbor District Library had long served residents of the western part of the township, and the Plymouth-Canton District Library served only a small portion of residents along the eastern border.

Renovation of the community room at the Harris Road Fire Department substation began in fall of that year, and the library opened February 24, 2007, with 2,300 items in its collection, including CDs, DVDs and books on tape available for circulation. The library also offers four computer terminals with Internet connection as well as research databases, and craft and story times for youngsters. Service was provided originally for 20 hours per week and then extended in January 2008 to 24 hours per week. Summer hours offer 32 hours of service per week.
